Redskins broaden their horizons

As the eastern skyline lit up with a fiery crest and projected its scorching rays down upon a perspiring, but perservering student body, Redskins rose to the occasion, and walked the hallowed halls of North once again.

During the week before school started, the B.O.E debated on instituting a "heat schedule," making the time 7-2. As a result, the air conditioned library became a popular lunch-time "hangout."

While most Redskins were sweating it out in the classroom, the football team was on the practice field "warming up" for their first game of the season against Northwest. With fevers running high on spirit and a car caravan to cheer on the football team, Redskins were spurred to a decisive 28-0 victory over the Grizzlies.

In only two weeks Redskins were already in high gear and ready to go. They were ready to go to new levels and plateaus for a new year. Redskins were in search of new horizons.

Seniors Laurie Janzing and Becky Johnson show their spirit by participating in Cowboy Day during Spirit Week.

Involvement adds another dimension

Though students were busy trying to get in gear and into a daily routine, they still found the time to get caught up in school spirit and have a little fun.

Friday assemblies before football games enabled Redskins to release their enthusiasm in a constructive manner. It was no problem getting the football team fired up and hungry for victory, as student spirit hit fever pitch.

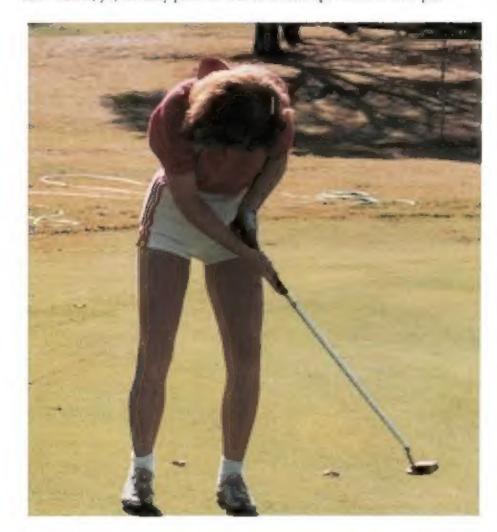

Once again, North was very instrumental in the United Way fund drive. Redskins contributed a total of $867 to this cause, and seniors received an hour lunch one day for raising more money than any other class. An "Almost Anything Goes" assembly served as the chief fund-raiser for United Way.

Students realized that it only takes a little involvement and some genuine effort to make school something to look forward to. By reaching out to grab a little extra, students expanded their horizons and increased their incentive to pursue even higher goals.

Seniors Aaron Rice and Lance Milsap take time out from their class to get a drink from the new water fountains in senior hall.

Until this year one could walk the halis at lunchtime or sit on a staircase and eat their lunch. However, this practice caused a few problems. Miscellaneous trash dotted the halls constantly, making scenery around North High resemble the aftermath of a rock concert. Thus, a new policy was instituted, specifying that food was allowed only in the cafeteria.

New trees replaced dying ones on the campus. Young Red Oaks, Maples, Ash, and Redbuds were planted to provide beauty throughout the seasons.

Students were off to a full year of new things. Challenges and achievements never before encountered were on the horizon ready to be searched out and conquered.

Activities help relieve boredom

Each year in high school there are students attempting to conquer new horizons that present challenges academically, as well as tests of discipline.

Of course, students are not the only people who are involved in school. In order for parents to reaquaint themselves with the ''ins'' and ''outs'' of high school life, open house was held on September 9. The administration decided to make it early in the school year so that parents could get a close look before report cards were issued

During the scorcher days of August and September, tempers sometimes ran a little high. In order to add some variety, an outdoor pep rally was held. With cheerleaders and yell leaders ready to perform, Redskins got keyed up for the

Traditions add touch of class

Tradition has always been a large part of the North High scene. Entering its fifty-third year of existence, North's traditions are widely known, not only among Redskins, but also among most Wichitans

North's Tower remains as a major highlight of the school. With spotlights showcasing its intricate architecture, it can be seen while driving on Thirteenth street or Rochester, day or night

Stationed at his post outside of the library in Senior Hall, Butch has been trained to oversee all activity and maintain order at all times. Butch has been a feature at North for forty-four years, after being presented by the class of '37 Without his ominous presence, Senior Hall just would not be the same.

Of course, what would a year at North be without that infamous group of seniors who make up the crew called the S-Section. A normal Friday attire for any of this bunch would be white thermal underwear underneath red shorts, and S-Section shirts with a neck-tie, topped off with cowboy hats and boots. This band of desperados is a mainstay in creating spirit in the school

Tradition is alive and well at North High, and even after one graduates from North, these traditions do not fade from memory. The horizons that are reached during the high school years are just as important afterwards as they are when they are tealized. Sometimes, looking back on past accomplishments sputs people to approach new horizons. These school traditions remain an integral part of one's life forever.

Student Life

Returning back to old traditions, Homecoming brings enjoyment for all

"Who are you taking to Homecoming?" During the week of October 20 the halls were buzzing about the dance planned for Saturday night, but there was more to Homecoming than just the dance.

Homecoming week started with a Monday assembly, used to inform students of the week's activities. Monday was College T-shirt Day, followed by Cowboy Day Tuesday. Thursday was Sweats and Stuffed Animal Day, and Friday everyone was encouraged to wear red and white for the game.

During the week the annual hall decotating contest was held. Seniors won the contest, but Juniors, Sophomores, and Freshmen all tried hard and made a good effort.

Before Friday's game against Heights, Tribe sponsored the decorating of the field, and the car caravan to the game had the best turnout of the year. The football team also came through, burying the Falcons 20-2.

When the dance finally came around, KWKN disc-jockey Jay Brown was on hand to provide music, and everyone was wondering who had been voted Homecoming Royalty. An old tradition was returned to, which required Pigskin Pete candidates to be members of the varsity football squad, and Varsity Sue candidates to be chosen from the Senior class. When the moment finally arrived, Doug Herrington was named Pigskin Pete, and Lisa Toledo was crowned Varsity Sue.

Music, Drama Departments provide school with 3 productions early in year

By mid-September, teachers and students alike were getting back in the routine of a school year. Everyone's spirit seemed to need a lift, and this was provided by the Music Department. Working hard in the short time they had, the department's three main performing groups each came up with their own portion of a show. The 3 for $1 concert was born. The Madrigals performed "Revival," Music Theatre did a production of the Broadway hit "They're Playing Our Song," and the Nocturnes, doing a take-off of the hit movie "Urban Cowboy," countered with "Suburban Cowgirl "

The Drama Department was also preparing a show during this time. After having only three weeks to get it all together, students came out with their first production of the year, the melodrama "The Drunkard." This production, made especially enjoyable through the use of audience participation which went as far as throwing popcorn at the villain, was so successful that an encore performance was scheduled for mid-January

Although complicated by competing with a football game on opening night, the Drama Department's second production, "Dracula," was a success. The story dealt with a vampire named Dracula and his nemisis, Professor Van Helsing Good eventually won, and Dracula died with a stake driven into his heart. Special effects were an important part of this production, which utilized torches for lighting, flash pots which allowed Dracula to disappear, and a large bat which emerged for an across-the-stage flight

"Drama students learned a valuable lesson while working on these productions," according to Drama teacher Kim Ledford. "In the words of Socrates, they learned to "know thyself."

Drama, Music Departments present all-school musical 'Guys and Dolls'

Two notorious gamblers named Nathan Detroit and Skye Masterson were portrayed by Joe Becker, sr., and Kirk Mardock, jr., in the all-school musical "Guys and Dolls"

"Guys and Dolls" follows the love lives of these two as Nathan becomes romantically involved with Adelaide, a hotboxer, who is played by Gaylene Smith, sr. Meanwhile, Nathan's drinking buddy, Skye is after the love of Miss Sarah, a Salvation Army missionary, played by Kathy Ellis, soph.

Special arrangements were worked out so that the pit orchestra could have one hour together to practice the music as a group. Both the music and art departments began preparing for the musical early in the month of October. Rehear, sals were held nearly every evening after school, with many of them lasting until late at right.

Performances were held on November 23, 24, and 25, with one Sunday matinee. Each performance played to an audience of nearly 200

In an attempt to promote the musical, juniors Gina Moore and Greg Orth were chosen as the special "Guy and Doll," an honor that included a night out in a chauffeured limousine. A total of over 120 students were involved in the production

"The play brought a lot of talented people together, because of all the bours of hard work and good times. The cast party was fantastic!" said student direc tor Cheryl Blackwell, sr.

Principals provoke laughter at fourth annual Senior Celebration

To promote the country-western theme of the fourth annual Senior Celebration, guests came dressed in cowboy hats and boots, blue jeans, and flannel shirts. A dinner of barbecue brisket, baked potatoes, salad, Texas toast, and chocolate cake was served to the honored seniors by subservient juniors. The celebrating began at 7:00 on the night of March 13 and lasted until 9 00

Following the dinner, everyone went down to the library for the "roasting" session. Seniors Blake Byfield, Gaylene Smith, Joe Becker, and David Craddock took their shots at the administration; but assistant principals Terry Guidry and Mel Johnson stole the show when they showed up dressed with curly wigs in honor of senior class president Roger Hinkle.

After the "roasting" was over, the guests moved back upstairs to the cafeteria for the dance. Two dance instructors from the Cowboy Club showed up to teach some western dances, including the "Cowboy Stomp," the "Two Step," and the "Cotton-eye Joe," among others.

"The dance lessons were really a lot of fun, but the best part of the evening was seeing the students and administrators roasting each other," said Laurie Janzing, sr

Photographs of 'The Best of Times' sets theme for Junior-Senior Prom

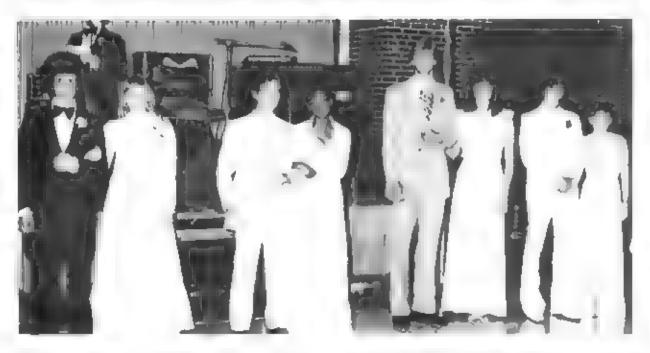

As the Junior-Seniot Prom season rolled around, students began the long, nerve-racking search for dates, renting tuxedos, and buying dresses. Students and teachers alike could feel the anticipation and excitement building throughout the school.

Brian Wendelburg and Louise Miller, srs., were voted prom King and Queen Greg Orth and Gina Moore, jrs., were elected prince and princess.

Junior and Senior class officers, with the help of the administration and sponsors Margaret Crawford and Ruth Muenchrath, got an early start planning the big event of the year. Renting a ballroom, hiring the band, "Tumbling Dice," decorating, publicity, and ticket sales were just some of the tasks which were involved. They also decided on the theme, which was chosen to be "The Best of Times."

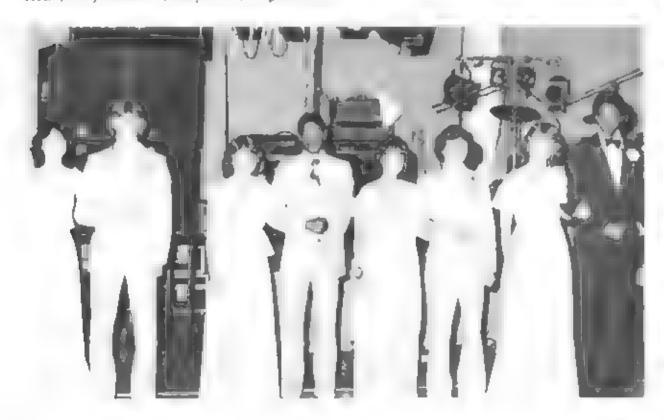

The after party, which was sponsored by parents, was held at the Rose Bowl West There the students bowled and played electronic games from midnight to 4:00 am. The parents prepared and served sloppy joes, cakes, cookies, and potato chips.

"The party gave the students a chance to get together in a casual atmosphere and relax after the prom," said chaperones Mr. and Mrs. William Garrelts.

Sophomores win Water Festival; Shelden, Sorrell named Tower royality

Ignoring warnings of rain that threatened to cast a damper over the buzzing crowd of spirited north-enders lined along both banks of the Little Arkansas, the Sophomore Class proceeded to sweep the annual Water Festival. After the coronation of Tower Royalty Jana Sorrell and Stan Sheldon, the events commenced

Outstoring the Seniors by 11½ points and the Juniors by 25, for a total of 94½, 83, and 69½ respectively, the Sophomore Class won the overall competition for the first time in many years of this traditionally senior-dominated event. Of the few who competed from the Freshman Class, they earned a total of nine points

In the canoe races, the seniors opened a lead over the second place juniors by winning three of the first five canoe races. The sophomores, however, splashed their way back into contention by winning four of the last six races.

By beating the seniors in the boys tug of war, the sophomores took first place in the overall competition

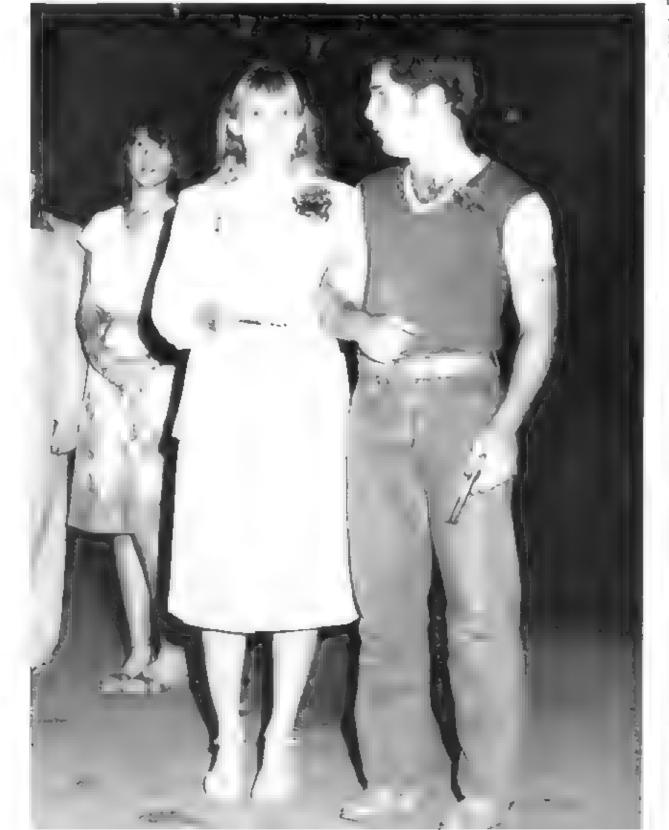

For all of the minor bruises and abrasions that were acquired at the festival, it was hard to tell the winners from the losers. However, onlookers from the banks could tell that the wet and wounded participants were more concerned with competing than winning.

As darkness descended upon the tired but anxious crowd, the floats were being manned and prepared for a journey down the Arkansas River. With a replica of a race car, the auto mechanics class took first place in the competition. The Sophomore Class float won second and Bible Club won third.

Students search for Fame; find it at Redskin Rhythms

Changing the pace of the show, drama was also included, with a dramatic interpretation called "Slow Dance On the Killing Ground." A skit from the Monty Python television series was also presented, as well as a two-girl mime routine called "Mirror Image."

A group of dancers also performed, along with a rock-n-roll band named "Eucheriah Savage and the Redskins." This group provided a change of music, performing Billy Joel's "Closer to the Boarderline" and "I Just Can't Wait" by the J. Geils Band

A variety of entertainment was displayed in the program, which for the first year was the sole responsibility of the Drama Department. Mrs. Kim Ledford, drama instructor, directed the program.

The backstage jitters ran contagiously from one nervous performer to the next just before show-time. But when the curtains raised as the show got underway, these Redskins showed that their week's diligence and imagination paid off. The theme was taken from the motion picture "Fame," and the show featured various students displaying their talents.

A number of solos were included in the program, such as "Out Here On My Own," "She Believes in Me," and "Lady." A trio of Barbara Streisand songs were also performed, with "Woman in the Moon," "With One More Look at You," and "The Way We Were" sung by three soloists, Probably the most light-hearted and unique solo was "Suppertime," which was sung by Snoopy, portrayed by Kirk Mardock.

M.C. for Redskin Rhythms, Cheryl Blackwell, st., introduces the next act on the program for the evening. Drumer for the group "Euchersah Savage and the Redskins" Earl Holle, jr., keeps the beat to the song "Closer to the Boarderline."

Vocal Music Department marks end of season with Spring Finale

'Spring Finale', performed by the Music Department and directed by Mark Clark, was held at Century II in the latter part of May.

Their own redition of 'South Pacific' was performed by the entire choir to open the concert. 'Stage and Screen' was sung next, followed by 'The Smell of Music', and 'The Jazz Singer.'

The wide variety of talent produced unusual and enjoyable musical numbers. The choir combined to yield a very successful production.

Scholarship Reception

As the year drew to an end, scholarships were awarded to seniors for outstanding academic achievements and athletic abilities. A Recognition Reception was held in honor of these students to acknowledge and commend them for their achievements. Preceding the reception, forty-eight students were initiated into the National Honors Society.

Recognition Reception

During the last part of May, a Student Recognition Reception was organized. Two hundred and forty students who made some type of positive contribution and were deserving of recognition were awarded certificates of honor.

309 graduates from class of '81 ready to pursue personal interests

Excitement reached peak level on the evening of Thursday, May 28, as approximately 309 seniors anxiously awaited the moment that they had worked 12 years for. Finally, at 8 o'clock, the commencement ceremonies got underway as North's Symphonic Band, under the direction of Mr. Richard Gardner, performed "Pomp and Circumstance" and the "Star Spangled Banner."

Jana Sorrell led the audience in the Pledge of Allegience, followed by Shanna Nispel, who handled the Invocation

Under the direction of Mr. Mark Clark, the North High Choir proceeded to perform "Alleluia" and "You'll Never Walk Alone."

Graduates Joe Becker and David Craddock then came on to address the audience. Becker's speech was titled "The Enigma," while Craddock spoke of "The Way Things Will Be." Other honors included Jana Sorrell as Valedectorian and Ronn Moore, Salutatorian.

Or. Longhofer then presented the class to the BOE representative, JoAnn Pottorff. At last it was time for the graduates to get those precious diplomas

Associate Principal Don Olson and Assistant Principals Terry Guidry and Mel Johnson presented the class with the certificates.

North's choir came back once more to sing "A Gaelic Blessing" before the class of '81 joined together to sing the Alma Mater. The ceremonies ended with the Benediction given by Leslie Hiskett.

As a flurry of hats flew into the air, a huge sigh of relief was heard. After filing out of the auditorium, most grads went on to the Senior Party, and bigger and better things in years to come.

A survey among North students found their favorite movies, albums, and singles of the year. Richard Pryor and Gene Wilder's "Stir Crazy" was the 5," the workingman's movie was third, had attended.

while "Airplane," a spoof on the "Airport" movies, came in fourth. Another horror flick, "The Howling," finished

R.E.O. Speedwagon's "Hi Infidelity" was the favorite album among Redskins, with Styx' "Paradise Theater" a close second. For some harder rock-n-roll, AC-DC's "Back in Black" and "Nature of the Beast" from April Wine were the next two choices. "Crimes of Passion" by Pat Benetat was fifth.

As for 45's, R.E O.'s "Keep On Loving You" was first, with "Woman" by John Lennon second. "Celebration" from Kool and the Gang placed third, Hall and Oates' "Your Kiss Is On My List" was fourth, and Kenny Rogers' "Lady" rounded out the singles.

With the success of the movie "Urban Cowboy," western apparel became the newest look in fashion. Students and businessmen wore western styled suits with cowboy boots, western shifts, jeans, hats and skitts. Hostages released after 444 days; President Reagan shot with handgun

Shorts and sundresses were common among students at the beginning of the school year because of the scorching weather. From early summer throughout the fall, Kansas was experiencing a record breaking heat wave, which resulted in a very dry winter and spring

On October 1, Towne West held its grand opening. Upon completion the center was to consist of approximately 120 stores.

While new stores were opening up on the west side of town, across town was a different story. Those students who were without transportation experienced a sudden shortage of eating establishments within walking distance of the school. The BOE purchased and permanently closed Hardee's fast food restaurant in late February, while Zesto, another nearby eating place, closed for a week early in May as ownership changed hands. The lot on which Hardee's formerly stood was added to the student parking lot.

'Swarm' ends season with 5-4 record

After a spirit raising pep rally in the afternoon, Redskin fans crowded into Heights stadium to watch the varsity seam roll over the Northwest Grizzlies, $\frac{1}{12} \text{4-0} in the season opener

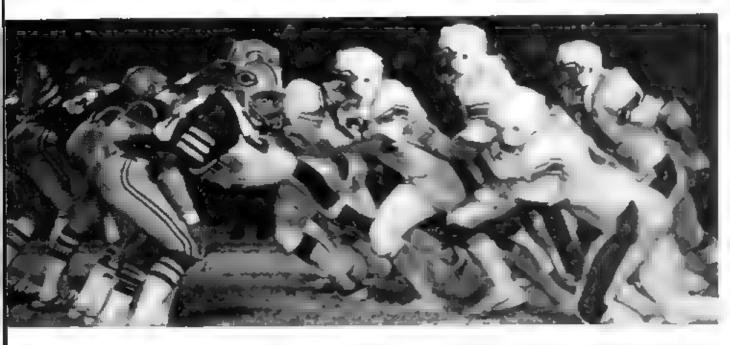

East, North was stopped cold, but then managed to come back the following week to shut out the Titans of South High

With a record of 2-2, the Redskin team went into the fifth game against the Southest Buffaloes. The two teams dug and scratched their way through the entire game, and at the end of the fourth quarter the score was tied, 7.7 North scored first in overtime to put the Redskins on top 13-7 with the extra point

Southeast scored, made the conversion, and sent North away with a 14-13 loss. The Redskins went away disappointed, but also with the thrill of almost bearing undefeated Southeast.

After the Southeast game, North was knocked off by Kapaun Mount Carmel, but then finished the season on three winning notes; beating Heights, the West Proneers, and the Golden Eagles of Carroll to top off their 5-4 season.

Stan Sheldon, sr., summed it up this way, "Coach Shepler did a good job training us for the season. Even though our win loss record didn't show much, we really did improve and deserved a lot more."

In the fourth quarter, North defenders break into the unsuspecting Carroll fine to hold onto the 20-5 victory

Redskins gain valuable experience

Redskin's Junior Varsity team, coached by Mr. Chuck Palmer, started off the season on a winning note. With Steve Minor, jr., calling the shots, the team rolled over the East High Aces, 13-0. Winning one more game against the South Titans, 19-0, the team finished the season with a 2-2 record.

We did pretty good this year, but we could have done better," said Dale Heckman, ir.

Sophomore Football

Mr. Maurice Hendershot, a twentytwo year member of the North High coaching staff, led the sophomore team to a 3-4 season. Though losing fullback Brett Orth, soph., to a knee injury early in the season, the team managed to pull off wins against the South Titans, 20-0, and the Kapaun Mount Carmel Crusaders, 20-6. Willie Bell had a big day, scoring twice against Kapaun

North won one more game against the Heights Falcons, and lost the last game they played to the West Pioneers 7-0.

Due to injuries, North was forced to []] forfeit their last scheduled game of the season against Bishop Carroll.

Generally shooting in the low 80's, the squad hoped to lower their scores next season and place higher in the city league standings

It was a rebuilding and developing year for the girls' golf team. The girls, it who finished the season with an 0-5. league record, worked hard on their skills's and lowered their total team score by 403 strokes. They placed fifth in the regional meet, defeating Heights, a team they fell! to by 8 strokes earlier in the season.

Coach Jan Manion welcomed back, returning letterwomen Becci Brenner, Heather McKenzie, and Kim Walker, 15along with newcomer Colleen O'Melia The girls are all juniors and will be returning next fall for what Mrs. Manion believes will be a much improved season.

Tennis

Tennis team ties for second in city

Losing only two matches throughout the city league season, the boys' tennis team finished with six wins and two losses. The only two defeats were handed down by Southeast and KMC. Their winning record was good enough for a second place tie in the city league.

For such a young team, consisting of all underclassman but one, the boys squad did relatively well. Brent Fields, along with older brother Barry, contributed greatly to the six man squad. Both of the Fields brothers placed high in singles competition throughout the season. Barry Fields took second, while Brent placed third in the city league tournament. The Fields brothers placed among the top eight in the state.

In doubles competition, Tim Filby and Bill Fraley combined their skills to also place well in tournament play.

Girls' Tennis

Seasonal play for the girls' tennis team began on September 10. Starting off well, the girls' first match was against. West, winning eight matches to one. Other victories included a 7-2 win over. Heights, and a 5-4 victory over South. The team finished the season with a record of three wins and five losses.

The team was led by returning letterwomen Tara Gregory, and Cindy Mc-Cord, along with Sandy Totten. In the latter part of the season, sisters Pam and Kathy Giles did exceptionally well.

Track

Girls' track team sets 2 new records

In spite of a relatively small team and a number of injuries the girls' track team had a very successful season, winning two meets, the Northwest Invitational and the Campus Invitational.

This success was also evident in two new school records. Janel Edwards, jr. broke North's previous high jump record by finishing third at state with a high of 5'8" and Lori Dominique, sr., bettered the record she had set the year before in the 100m hurdles with a time of 14.0 seconds

At regionals, Edwards, Laurie Moon, Dominique and the 400m and 800m relay all qualified for state The 800m relay team of Moon, Missy Porter, Becky Webster and Edwards finished sixth and the 400m relay team of Moon, Webster, Piper Jackson and Edwards won third place at state

Boys' Track

The boys' track team also had a fairly good season although they were handicapped with a very small team.

With only 10 members, six qualified for the state meet. The 1 mile and 2 mile telays placed third at regionals. Dale Harper and Stan Sheldon made finals at 1 regionals in the 100 and 200 meter dash.

At state the 2 mile relay took sixth.

Squad wins award for best cheering group

Early morning practices started out the year for the varsity cheerleaders. Cheerleading camp held in June gave the girls a chance to improve their skills. They received three blue ribbons and a plaque for the outstanding squad. Lori Dominique was honored with the individual award of outstanding NCA (National Cheerleading Association) cheerleader of the camp.

In September, the Varsity cheerleading squad, along with the Junior Varsity cheerleaders, planned and served a fund-raising pancake breakfast which was held at Minisa Park. They also headed the pep assemblies.

"It was fun to cheer for two winning teams," said Jana Sorrell, sr. "School spirit improved so much from last year." Performing at an assembly, senior varsity yell leaders Andre Stroughter and Mike Lauer, along with senior varsity cheerleader Monica George, yell a chant to the opposing team

Pom pon squad receives team precision award

During the summer, eight members of the pom pon squad participated in a week long camp at Kansas University. At the camp, the girls gained skills and precision on performances which helped them win many awards. The first day out the girls captured the team precision ribbon with their performance of a home routine. Other awards received were for showmanship, kicks, and effort. Individual achievement awards went to Janette Johnson and Lisa Toledo

Along with performing during halftime at Varsity Football and Basketball games, the squad was also rated at Band Day held at W.S.U., in which they received a 1 rating on their performance of 'Soul Man.' Later in the year, ten of the girls traveled to Emporia to perform for a Physical Education Convention

With seventeen girls making up the squad, they participated in many other events throughout the year. In early January they helped out at the Jail Bail at Towne East to help promote the Wichita Wind Hockey Team, and also made an appearance at the Woman's Pizza Hut Basketball Classic.

During the fall, the Inter-varsity squad cheered for gymnastics and cross-country. The squad also cheered the wrestlers on during the winter months. Throughout the spring, they were busy supporting the track team at their meets.

Until recently, the I.V. squad was known as the wrestling squad. The name was changed because they supported not only the wrestling team but also other sports throughout the year.

During the summer months, four out of the six members on the squad attended a summer NCA camp. The squad was also busy with many fund raisers, including their participation at the Student Legislature carnival, where they were in charge of the jail. The girls also sold the tickets used to put people in jail.

Squad active in fund raising pancake breakfast

Varsity girls' games and events were backed up by the Junior Varsity cheerleading squad. They cheered at JV football games as well as girls' and boys' basketball games. The JV squad participated in activities such as a pancake breakfast in September and the scrimmage assemblies before the basketball season started. They also participated in weekly pep rallies, sophomore orientation, and headed the car wash.

Sophomore cheerleaders supported all the sophomore sports and pep assemblies. To raise money they sold donuts before school. Stationary was sold in December to raise money for the JV and Sophomore squads. In February they held a pep assembly for sophomores only, to honor all sophomore athletes.

Flag girls work hard, show skill in performances

Getting an early start on the season, the flag girls, led by Miss Paula Cobb, started practices in July and continued through the summer. Miss Cobb, a sophomore at Wichita State University, also had the squad up early every morning of the first semester to practice

Working closely with the marching band, the squad added style and flare to halftime shows by performing toutines to such songs as "Tusk," the "Pepsi" theme, and the theme to "Muppet Movie." They also performed at pep rallies and were invited to the W.S.U. Band Day. Held on October 18, the ladies received a I for their performance of the theme from "White Shadow."

Kicking off the year with an appearance at the Pizza Hut College All-Stat basketball game, the pep band kept up their torrid pace, playing pep assemblies and basketball games. In order to get in a little last-minute preperation, practices were held at 7 p.m. on game days, as well as every Tuesday.

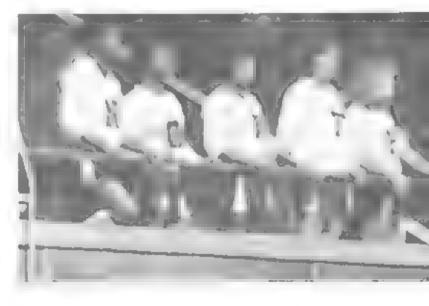

Coordinating the pep assemblies with the pom pon girls, flag girls, cheerleaders, and Tribe, the band, under the direction of Mr. Richard Gardner, kept feet a tappin' and hands a clappin' throughout pep railies.

Letter Girls

Overcoming a drop in membership, the lettergirls once again served the purpose for which they were formed. By helping to get other freshmen and sophomores involved with sporting events, the girls promoted school spirit. The squad dropped from 18 to 10 members, while still keeping up with football and basketball games. The girls met on Mondays during club period to learn cheers and plan activities

The organization introduced fall and winter sports and sponsored Coaches Day, which coincided with Good Sportsmanship Week

Along with introducing sports, Tribe also sponsored the Godspell assembly and combined with the cheerleaders to sponsor Lynette Woodard Day.

Winter dance, Student Council's first project

Student Legislature had their work cut out for them at the beginning of the year when they organized the Winter Homecoming dance. Their responsibilities included ticket sales, music, decorations, and the elections of Homecoming Royalty.

Eleven out of the forty members of Student Leg. attended a Student Council Conference at Augusta High School in October. There they learned the importance of leadership, and learned how to communicate with many different kinds of people.

In late February, the movie 1941 was shown on a Friday night. Because it was held on a Friday night, the turn out was not as successful as the other fund raising activities planned for the student body during the school hours.

The club had many special events during the year. Among these were going to care homes during the holidays to carol and visit the elderly, and building a float for the water festival

Zoological Studies

It was slow going at first for the newly formed Zoological Studies Club, but through the motivation of sponsor Alan Volkmann, they soon got things moving.

During the spring, the club conducted programs for children. Programs on rodents, turtles, insects, amphibians, snakes, and fish were given. The club also went to the Sedgwick County Zoo to study the habitats of the various animals.

Medical Careers

Membership in Medical Careers Club almost doubled from the previous years.

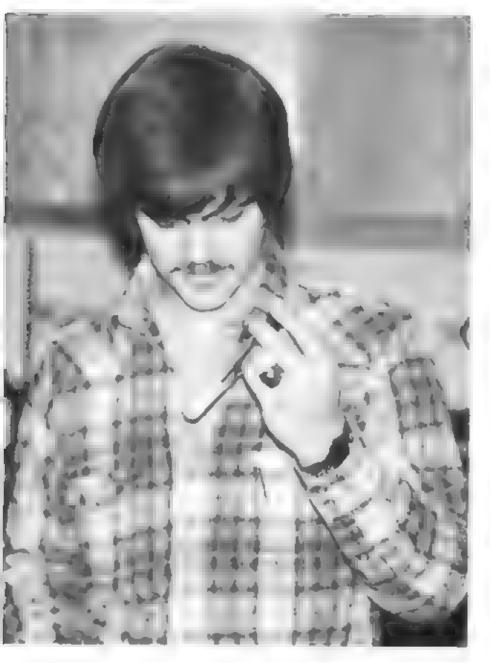

A social worker came in September to talk to club members about her various responsibilities. Visits by her and a Pediatric Nurse Practitioner helped club members to become aware of the medical careers that are available.

Whether because of a compelling interest in science, or just the need for something which is challenging and fun, the Chemistry Club, sponsored by Della Schiebold, had an exciting year.

One of the challenges undertaken by the club was the testing of drinking water for chlorine content. Several samples of tap water were taken and their chlorine contents measured to check whether or not the amount of chlorine in the water varied from place to place. The results were somewhat surprising, as they found that chlorine content did in fact vary.

Along with the chemical experiments, the Chemistry Club took trips to an oil refinery and Vulcan Chemical Corpora-

Rock-n-rollers enjoy concerts during meetings

Whenever popular rock bands appeared on television, Rock Club sponsor Jack Grieder, armed with a video-tape machine, would capture the essence of live music, bring it to school, and air it for club meetings

Through the wooders of modern technology, groups like R.E.O. Speedwagon, Journey, and Little River Band were able to be present for meetings

"A comfortable atmosphere where students could relax and listen to albums or see tapes contributed greatly to the club's success. There are a lot of musi cians at North who enjoy bearing the success stones of today's most popular bands, because it gives us the incentive to work harder on our own music," said Shawn Carson, jr. French Club membership grew from 15 members to an astounding 60 members. The increasing number was attributed to the many activities planned by club sponsor Mrs. Shomaker.

To fund their many activities a car wash was held in September in Twin Lakes parking lot. They also sold M&M's and candy bars during the month of November...

A bike trip was planned in October which was called "La Tour de Wichita." They biked from Riverside Park to Sims Park, where they held a cook out. A skating party was held the next weekend. They used the new bike trail to skate on.

French Club also took part in the United Way's "Almost Anything Goes" assembly, where they placed fourth in the obstacle course. A trip to Dallas was planned during the first week in May.

Polaris staff begins year with Polaris Potpourri

Beginning its twelfth year of publication, Polaris, under the incomparable leadership of Editor-in-Chief Joe Becker and advisor Olivia Jacobs, set out to produce the best Polaris publication yet.

The staff began the year by presenting a new "Polaris Potpourri" show, Under the direction of Joe Becker and starting a cast of Polaris staff members and students from the Drama Department, the show was put on December 19 and was shown every hour throughout the day

The staff then began the job of reading and evaluating perplexing pieces of positively purposeful poetry and prose. Throughout the year, the staff accepted or rejected pieces of student literature. The final magazine was laden with prose, which made it one of the longest magazines in recent years.

College Bowl team takes third place

Becoming more active all the time, the National Honor Society really got moving.

First off, members of NHS gathered at Mr. Schmidt's house for a toof-raising party on November 8.

On May 19, forty-three new members were initiated into the National Honor Society. Students were offered membership on the qualifications of scholarship (3.5 cumulative grade point average), leadership, character, and service to North High School.

"To be offered membership in NHS is to be honored by the principal and faculty for having maintained the standard of academic excellence. These students should be proud of their achievement, and we are proud to recognize them for their hard work over the past three years," said Olivia Jacobs, sponsor.

Money raised by club for Thespian charter

In its first year of existence, the Drama Club provided a place where students interested in the theatre could get together. Meetings were often spent with members performing skits for each other or learning various aspects of drama. The members also sold candy bars to raise money

This money went towards buying a charter in the Thespians, a national organization of people involved in the various areas of drama. Along with the charter, a seperate membership fee was charged for each person who joins. This fee was also paid by the club from money that was raised through the candy sales Membership in the organization is a good reference for those seeking a career in drama

Political issues discussed in club periods

Political Science Club's seven members utilized their club periods to discuss various political issues that presented themselves throughout the year. With another presidential election facing Americans, this time was especially helpful in assessing the candidates.

In their first year of existence, club members ran the club themselves Although sponsor Gerald Kinney was present at meetings he did not direct the sessions. The members brought up different questions, and the meetings simply flowed from there

"I was glad to have the opportunity to know this interesting bunch of young people. We all learned together," added Kinney.

Board of Education decides to keep freshman project

Still in the experimental stage, the project of freshmen attending high school was continued another year. Freshmen involved in the program here were the only ones in the city attending high school, and the Board of Education assigned them here permenantly.

Instead of the usual class officers, interested students formed a Freshman Council. Members of the council were Tim Brockman, John Cantrell, Tammy Cardona, Ben Dewey, Ginger Mendoza, Sally Miller, Michelle Moore, Fred Pankey, Annette Santiago, Jackie Smith, and Amanda Wilson. Assisting the council was the Ninth Grade Team, made up of teachers from each department and a counselor. The goal of the team was to make the student body aware of the freshmen and help them gain recognition.

North's entire freshmen class took two buses to the schools in order to get acquainted with the various courses offered and their usefulness in the "real world." A guide showed the class around to all the different buildings used for vo-tech at East High.

Auto mechanics, wood-working, electronics, sewing, welding, metals, plumbing, air conditioner and heater repair and a library in the main office where text books are kept and may be checked out for private use were all visited by the students.

Vo-tech provides opportunities for the future by teaching specific job skills. Anyone who has planned a career in any of the courses offered by vo-tech benefits greatly from obtaining the experience during high school.

Special assembly promotes spirit

Concentrating on money-making projects such as selling key rings and sponsoring a booth at the annual carnival, the sophomore class was able to raise enough funds to finance a skating party.

A special assembly for sophomores, designed to promote sophomore sports, was held in February. Instead of sitting in the stands, students lined the perimeter of the floor to get the feeling of actually being a part of the assembly

Varsity and sophomore theerleaders performed at the assembly, along with the letter girls and pep band. Coach Palmer introduced the sophomore basketball team, who came out and exhibited their roundball prowess.

During a special information section held as part of the assembly, Mr. Dwayne Schmidt talked about summer sports, pom pon tryouts, and the process of becoming a class officer

Teresa VanWey devotes spare time to musical career

Sophomores found a variety of ways to stay active outside of school. One of the more unique examples of this is Teresa VanWey.

After five years of playing the violin, Teresa was recommended to James Cesar, the master violinist for the Wichita Symphony. She auditioned for him, and earned the right to be one of his few students

In addition to playing in the school orchestra, Teresa was accepted into the Wichita Youth Symphony. Her place with the symphony was also obtained through an audition. She spends Saturday mornings practicing with the symphony, which meets from 9-12 at W S U.

Teresa's goals for the near future include traveling to New York, where she plans to attend the Juliard School of Music.

"I haven't decided yet on a specific career, just as long as it is something dealing with music," Teresa said. "Possibly performing, or even teaching music."

Officers plan Junior-Senior Prom

At the beginning of the school year, Junior class officers found themselves busy preparing decorations for spirit week Officers lan Jackson, president, Kim Gates, vice president, and Kristen Garrelts, secretary-treasurer; received a great deal of help from fellow juniors in the decorating of Junior hall, and received second place over all, losing only to the seniors

During September the officers, with the help of class sponsors Ruth Muen chrath and Jack Grieder selected the design of the Indian chief to be put on class rings. Plans were also made to provide waiters and waitresses for Senior Celebration.

The most important responsibility of the class officers was planning, decorating, and promoting the Junior-Senior prom with the help of Senior class. officers. Picking a band, making reservations for a tocation, and selecting a theme occupied a lot of planning time M&M candies were sold to raise money for the prom, thus lowering individual ticket prices

Throughout the year, junior participation ranked extremely high. This helped tocreate a school year which was both a great learning experience and a lot of James Abel Jimmy Adams

Trying to prepare for Redskin Rhythms. Vendetta members Keith Atterberry. Denc East, G.I Smith, and Jon Opliger go through their set

Rock provides musical release

With a bass, a coupie of guitars, a drum set, and a place to play with very understanding (or deaf) parents, you have all you need to start your own band.

Said Deric East, jr., member of Vendetta, "I play in a band because it's a lot of fun. I really enjoy being a part of the band."

Most bands start off with some friends meeting together for a couple of hours of powerful rock. These types of bands come and go, but the more serious bands plan on continuing after high school and making a profession of music.

Comments Aaron Brown, jr., drummer of Chronicle, "I strongly desire creative, aesthetic and hopefully financial satisfaction from music, and I hope to better and enlighten the minds of many in this suffering world through the beauty of musical expression."

Class officers plan Senior Celebration

As representatives of their class, senior officers had many decisions to make. Starting out by deciding which company should receive class ring orders, the officers determined which styles and options would be offered on the rings. They also decided which companies to award graduation announcements and cap and gown contracts to.

in the year for Senior Celebration, which was held in March. They raised money by holding a September dance and by selling Senior Class T-shirts. To make Senior Celebration more informal and to encourage more people to attend, we Western Style theme was chosen.

The officers concluded the year by meeting with junior class officers to plan the Junior-Senior Prom held at the Campus Activity Center at Wichita State.

S-Section antics liven assemblies

SENIORS!" This is one of the many cheets heard frequently at a pep assembly or a game that is attended by those notorious guys known as the S-Section. This 'organization' is made up of senior guys who wear T-shirts that taxy "S-Section."

The S-Section."

The S-Section has many theers and chants, but few are repeatable. These cheers are kept in books which the members call their "handbooks." The group is most known for the rather unique chants and crazy things they do at games and assemblies. Along with their T-shirts and chant books, the members also have nicknames which represent their personalities.

Section is too rowdy and their language is bad, others say that they are the most spirited group at North. As put by Mike Manis, sr., "A year without the Section would be a year without Redshin spirit."

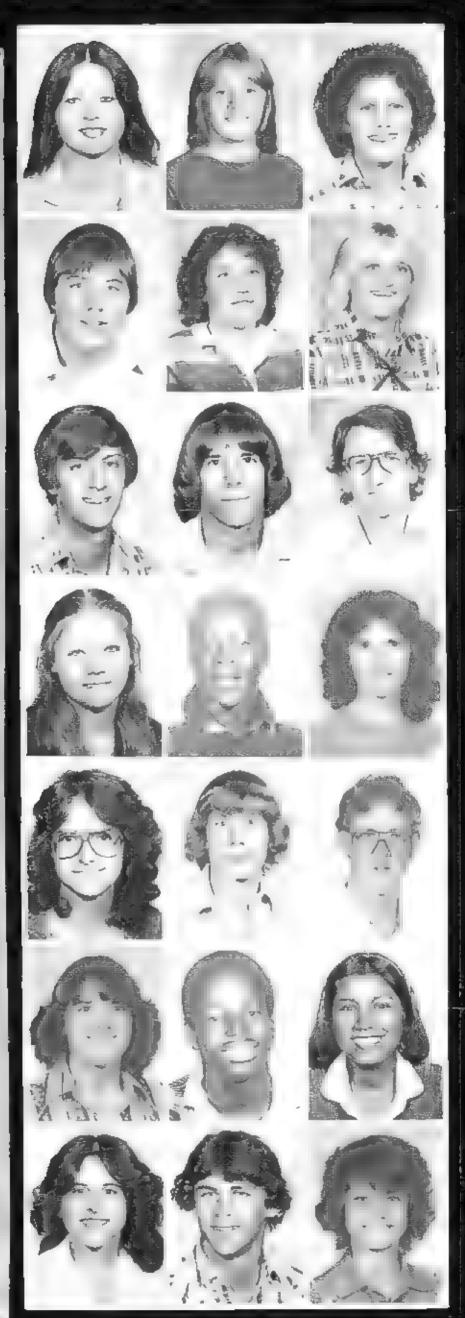

Waiting for their turn to participate in the "Almost Anything Goes" assembly, two anknown S-Section members watch the competition.

Karate good for exercise, confidence

With all the violence in the city, many citizens have decided to learn something about how they can defend themselves, to whether it be carrying a whistle or learn. ing katate. Jennie Vardaman, st., is one of these concerned citizens who has twelve years old the martial arts. She is taken karare for five years. Besides help-: presently working on completing her ing to increase her self-confidence, karate is also good exercise.

Using her instructions from Roger Carpenter's Kansas Karate Institute, she has won fifty trophies in various competitions. Out of these trophies, sixteen were first-place awards. She is ranked number two out of the women in the nine-state region, and is tied for eighth in the nation. In her junior year of high school she taught kids from three to brown belt and will then work on becoming a black belt.

"If you've tried different sports and were disappointed, then harate might be what you were looking for all the time," said Vardaman. "It worked out for me!"

Students seeking help can rely on administration

Returning unaltered from the previous year, the administrative quartet had their work cut out for them. Dr. Paul Longhofer, principal; associate principal Mr. Don Olson, and assistant principals Mr. Mel Johnson and Mr. Terry Guidry, combined to head another school year.

Dr. Longhofer, returning for his third year, coordinated the administrative department. He had his hands full with the North Central Evaluation. Used to determine funds for each school, the evaluation is held once every seven years. With a goal of completing the evaluation by Christmas, this put pressure on administrators and teachers alike.

Mr. Olson, in charge of schedule changes, made the task of shuffling 1400 students into their classes look easy

Mr. Johnson, in charge of attendance, did his best to keep with the policy of no more than five percent absenteeism during the year. This attempt was aided by his move into the main office

Once again, Mr. Guidry, in charge of planning activities, successfully organized a full schedule of events for the student body

Drama Dept. sets hectic pace throughout year Only three weeks after school began, the Drama Department presented its first production, a melodrama, "The Drunkard." The performance was such a success that an encore performance was given later in the year Continuing on their heetic pace, students began rehearsals for their Halloween production of "Dracula." The use of special effects, such as mists of smoke to allow for Dracula's entrances and exits, were prevelant throughout the show. At the same time, Drama's students were busy learning about pantomime, as well as learning about sound systems, make-up, and how they can be student directors. "Guys and Dolls," the all-school musical, was the next major production Combining acting skills with musical skills along with many long rehearsals made the production a success. Long lines were frequently observed outside the door of the Guidance Center during the opening weeks of school. As anxious fingernail biters scoured through enrollment material, counselors could be seen running throughout the school, trying to work out comptomising schedules for students and faculty alike

As the year progressed, students became more interested in higher education. The first A C.T. exam was held in October for college-bound seniors. The counselors also spent time discussing financial aid for these students financial aid for these students

In spite of the shortage of jobs for high school students, the counselors were able to help students find part-time work. Another aspect of the occupational assistance program is the Career Lab Sophomores spend two weeks out of their English class becoming aware of various career alternatives.

North's Guidance Center offered a wide range of services to parents as well as students. Counselors attempted to establish definite goals for pupils to strive for, while evaluating the students interests, aptitude, and abilities.

Students discover quiet atmosphere in library helpful

Like a criminal fleeing to the sanctuary of a church, students retreated to the library to seek the peace and quiet needed for intense studying or research. The reference room was especially helpful in researching practically any topic. Visual aides, such as microfilm and video tapes were available, as well as news clippings, magazines, pamphlets, numerous encyclopedias, and many other research cyclopedias, and many other research aides. These provided good sources and saved time when writing themes or term

Changes in the library staff included the promotion of Mrs. Wilma McLean from assistant to head librarian, and the addition of audio-visual aides director Ralph Jimenez. After 14 years of working at West High, Mr. Jimenez transferred to display works in spring art shows

Art students had a chance to show their work in two different art shows throughout the year. Alicia Shaw, jr., had a ceramic sculpture in the Scholastic Art Show held at the main library during February. Each teacher was allowed to pick five pieces from their classes to deplay to a Scatter that the main their classes to pick five pieces from their classes to display in a Spring show which was at the museum

Students were kept busy in all of the art classes. Silversmithing students made projects varying from jewelry to snuffboxes. Ceramics classes learned how to successfully use a potter's wheel, and crafts classes experimented with dollmaking and latch hook rugs. Commercial design classes learned aspects of drawing commercial ads.

Art has been a challenging ex-perience this year. It has allowed me the freedom to create new ideas and try dif-ferent mediums," said Sara Sater, soph.

A special algebra class was added to the curriculum. Taught by Mr. Hays, the course was designed for Vietnamese students

Students entered a variety of contests throughout the school year. The team of Ron Moore, Jarrel Crider, and Barry O'Melia took third place at the Math College Bowl at W.S.U. Several also attended a contest in Pittsburg during April.

Home Economics classes sponsor 'Third Floor Store'

Home Ec teachers offered students a number of different classes dealing with sewing, cooking, and other domestic arts. Problems facing the young people of today were also covered.

Sewing classes spent the first semester working on items to be sold at their "Third Floor Store," open to the school in early December. Meanwhile, cooking classes were busy providing snacks for school pow-wows and a teacher buffet.

Students enrolled in Single Survival covered a variety of subjects during the year, including cooking, income tax, insurance, and how to buy a car.

Problems with drugs were covered in the Home and Family classes, and learning to cope with the needs of children was the main objective of the Child Day Care classes. By holding a nursery school, students gained experience by dealing directly with young children.

A new addition to the department was the photography classes taught by Mr. Brunner. In these classes, prospective photographers learned how to take pictures, developed the film, and make prints of the pictures they shot.

Students in Woods classes used various equipment to make practical items, including bookeases, chests, tables, and other useful items.

Auto Mechanics classes obtained first hand knowledge of cars while gaining experience by working on cars belonging to students and teachers.

Students in the Advanced Graphic Arts classes found a way to help others, as well. Along with working with photography and silk screening T-shirts and posters, they found time to print programs for various school events.

A variety of new things played an important part in the season. One important factor was Mrs. Linda Douglas, who initiated the opportunity to earn a letter for participating in debate.

"Debate provided us with an opportunity to meet interesting people, gave us invaluable experience that will help us the college, and was a lot of fun," said seniors Jane Hartley and Jane Cepeda.

After the season ended, Forensics students also spent a lot of time preparing for and participating in the Student Congress. Each school sent selected students as representatives to participate in the Student Congress, where they proposed legislation about controversial issues and debated over them, deciding whether to pass or defeat them.

Because of the growing interest in mixed ensembles, a new group, Music Theatre, was once again included in the vocal music department after not being offered for several years. Along with the new class was the start of a new tradition, the Winter Cabaret, which was a dinner theatre type program held in January.

Madrigals and Nocturnes were also kept busy throughout the year. In addition to their traditional concerts, they sang at nutsing homes and churches
Both ensembles performed on KAKE Kaleidescope while the Madrigals also sang on the show P.M. Magazine and the KAKE Television Christmas special.

All three groups were responsible for putting on the 3 for $1 shows, the Masterworks Concert, and the Spring Concert. All ensembles also competed at the City Contest in March

Often thoughout the season the band was on the practice field by 7 a.m. Even though ratings were low at the W.S.U. Band Day on October 8, Director Richard Gardner felt the band was well on its way

To raise money for new equipment, the marching band held their third annual fruit sale, topping last year's sales record by almost twice as much. Part of this was put towards the band's spring trip to St. Louis. Israeli students

Through a variety of speakers and field trips, students in social studies classes gained awareness of the world around them. Courses were offered in a large number of areas, from the required Government and U.S. History classes to courses in Current Events, Sociology, and Psychology
Learning outside of the classroom played a large part in these classes. Both Government and Sociology classes made trips to the court house to observe trials Students in Sociology also made trips to a mortuary and a prison. Guest speakers covered topics dealing with divorce, seperation, and police operations.
In April, two students from Israel visited with social studies classes. They answered questions about their lifestyle, as well as about the politics of their nation. They visited schools all over the U.S.

A study of the river and island was a task undertaken by the Biology classes. They learned of the many different kinds of plants and insects, classifying them by groups. The river was tested for impurities and bacteria with the new water test kits obtained by the department.

The Science Department obtained a solution of new equipment, thus making the courses much more up to date and interesting.

Self-sufficiency is taught in special education

Redskins spend last few days parting, partying

By April, everyone began to notice a few changes around school

Girls started wearing dresses again, long burly sweaters were exchanged for t-shirts and halter-tops. And for some reason, the dispositions of everyone (even teachers) became bright and cheerful.

What was it that transformed people from sullen masses of passers-by to happy, even jovial individuals? Something was happening to change the attitude of the students.

Aha! The end of school was just around the corner.

Some students spent the last few days filling their autograph books full of comments from their collegues, some of whom they had to say "goodbye" to, while others reflected upon the successes and accomplishments that another year presented. Each new horizon encountered by students brought forth its own unique challenges for them.

During the last month of school, students invested their energy into things like the annual Water Festival, Redskin Rhythms, the Junior-Senior Prom, and as much partying as possible.

Why was everyone so different on the last day? Because it was the last day!

Royals, Shockers, Wings, Wind... fall just short of championships

"Close but no cigar." This famous expression became the oft-repeated theme for sports fans throughout Kansas.

Kansas City Royals

As the Kansas City Royals breezed through the regular season, and by the New York Yankees in three straight playoff games their fans had high expectations for the Royals in the World Series. However, the Philadelphia Phillies, in their first championship series in over 30 years, had the pitching to cool the K.C. bats and take the series in six games. Again Royal fans were forced to resign to their cry of "Wait'll next year."

Super Bowl

While struggling through adversity and much media attention focused on Al Davis, the owner of the Oakland Raiders, the team made it to the Super Bowl where they embartassed the Philadelphia Eagles in a runaway game. Davis' blocked attempt to move his team to L.A., in addition to allegations he made against Pete Rozelle, the NFL commissioner, concerning ticket scalping, bothered his team little as they proceded to win their second championship.

WSU vs KU

By defeating two teams in the early rounds of the NCAA's the Wichita State Shockers advanced to the semi-final rounds at the Superdome in New Orleans. The stage was set for the highlight of the playoffs.

The now famous "Battle of New Orleans," which WSU won 66-65, accomplished accidentally what years of legislation and persuasion could not. After failing to establish an interstate rivalry during the regular season, due to politics and financial reasons on the part of KU administration, the players finally had a chance to compete against each other. The season ended for the Shockers when they lost the Midwest Regional championship game to Louisiana State University.

Wichita Wings

After a very successful debut last year, the Wings returned for their second season and on the strength of an 18-2 home record, went on to capture their division. In a realignment of the league, the Wings were placed in the Western Division among the likes of Phoenix, Denver and San Francisco. After winning their first division crown they won two games at the friendly confines of the Kansas Coliseum to beat Chicago two games to one in the quarterfinals. In the semifinals in St. Louis against the Steamers, the Wings blew a large lead in the early going to end the season.

Wichita Wind

Another team that came a long way, but just not quite far enough to be crowned champion was Wichita's very own Wind hockey team. In their first year of existence they struggled through a mediocre season, and made their way to the playoffs. The Wind howled past Indianapolis and the first place Dallas team in the playoffs to advance to the championship series against Salt Lake City. After coming back to tie the best-of-seven series at three games apiece, the Wind lost the last game 5-2.

GUERRERO

World stunned by death of Lennon

The world was stunned on the night of Monday, December 8, 1980 as they learned of the assasination of John Lennon. Lennon was shot by a Beatles fan with a small caliber handgun, just outside his New York apartment house, and was dead on arrival at Roosevelt Hospital.

Lennon's death marked the passing of a hero; a man who cared about his world and the people in it. A man, who through his music expressed his inner self, and philosophized various aspects of life. By utilizing the influence that he possessed, because of his celebrity stature, Lennon became very involved in social causes, especially world peace.

Lennon's genius in practically all areas and aspects of music influenced most of the major tock and pop-oriented bands of the 1970's and early 1980's. He also changed the idea of tock bands thatjust played only good-time dance music. Lennon proved how versatile and useful music can be in forming opinions and the power that it can display.

In memory of Stuart Wilkinson

My Friend

As I stand here, nothing around me but the sea, I think of all the good times we had, just you and me. We had our ups, and we had our downs. We got into some arguments, even a few fights, But it seems they never lasted any more than a night. You were best at home in a driver's seat You always had a car hardly anyone could beat. I remember you as a friend who was always there, A person who helped and a person who cared. I was working last Monday when they brought me

The Chaplain told me, and we sat down and prayed, I couldn't hold the tears back; nor did I try.

Stuart, my friend, I'll miss you the most, And I loved you the most. Now that you're gone I thank God I was blessed just to know you I understand, Dear Lord, that we all have to go. But why you took my friend, I'll just never know. All I know is that you got one beck of a guy AND HEAVEN SHOULD BE PROUD.

Your friend Alan

Your 1981 Tower was published by a diligent staff of five seniors and thirteen juniors. In this volume we've tried to include every major (and most of the minor) events that affected you and North High school.

We hope that we've spelled everyone's name right and have made no other embarrassing errors.

The yearbook staff also hopes that you don't file your yearbook so far back that you won't be able to find it in 20 years.
